Designer and Artist Jakob Mueller founded bjm studio in 2016 as an interdisciplinary design studio. bjm studio is exploring the boundaries between product design, temporary architecture, and installations.

While working on sustainable design strategies, bjm studio challenges existing manufacturing techniques and seeks more ecologically friendly alternatives.

At the same time, the studio approaches clients and users to take a closer look into material processing and design transformation through the unconventional use of materials and outstanding designs.

With a hands-on mentality, he creates user-centric designs that allow the user to explore and personalize his design.

„Design, in my opinion, not only creates physical objects; it raises users awareness about their needs and how they can meet them in harmony with their environment.“
